TWENTY-FIRST YEAR

EARLINGTON, HOPKINS COUNTY, KY., THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1910

No. 14

SUCCESSOR TO CRABBE NAMED

Governor Willson Appoints Prof. Regenstein, Newport, Ky.

CRABBE GOES TO STATE NORMAL SCHOOL AT RICHMOND, KY.

Frankfort, Ky., April 2.—Prof. Ellsworth Regenstein, of Newport, was today appointed by Governor Willson Superintendent of Public Instruction to succeed J. G. Crabbe. Prof. Crabbe and Prof. Regenstein are conferring to decide on when Prof. Regenstein will assume his duties.

Prof. Crabbe will be president of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School at Richmond.

In accepting Prof. Crabbe's resignation Governor Willson says: "I feel now that while you sought office and were elected for a term of four years, assuming a very serious obligation to fulfill the contract, that you have accomplished so much during your term as superintendent and have made a useful and strong start in the change of our school system and have aroused such an interest and feeling in case of education that I have a right to say to you and in the name of people of Kentucky 'well and faithfully done.' You have won your right to lay down these duties and accept another post of duty in the same field of education where you will continue to be useful to all the people of the State."

"I wish you success in your new field and I am sure that the good wishes of the people of Kentucky will go with you and Mrs. Crabbe in your new field of labor. I wish also to say that I feel that the people of the State are greatly indebted to Mrs. Crabbe for the help she has given you in your work."

OST $200 TO RECOVER
"THAW" DOG WHIP.

Lawyer Hartridge's Testimony in Suit to Recover for His Services.

New York, April 4.—It cost Clifford W. Hartridge, attorney for Harry K. Thaw in Thaw's first trial for the killing of Stanford White, more than $700 to recover a dog whip with which it is alleged Thaw beat various girls, so the lawyer testified today in his suit against Thaw's mother for $52,000 for his services.

The money, he said, was given to a woman who had possession of the whip. The suit was not concluded.

Local Option Election.

Bowling Green, Ky., April 1.—Another local option election will likely be held in Bowling Green and Warren county on June 14. The "drys" are circulating a petition in each of the precincts of the county to obtain the required number of signatures. The "wets" will, in all probability, demand a separate vote in the city. This will, no doubt, mean a hot fight. It is conceded that the county outside of the city is "dry." The city voted "dry" three years ago next June by a majority of 229.

Fund For Dr. Cook.

New York, April 2.—On the authority of Capt. H. F. Osborn, one of the most active supporters of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the explorer, it was announced today that about $175,000 had been guaranteed towards a fund to help Dr. Cook prove his claim to the discovery of the North pole.

PLACE TO BE MADE VACANT BY M. H. THATCHER

It Has Been Offered to the Private Secretary of Governor Willson.

Frankfort, Ky., April 4.—McKenzie Todd has been offered the place of state inspector and examiner, to be made vacant by M. H. Thatcher, recently appointed by President Taft as governor of the Panama canal zone.

Mr. Todd is Governor Willson's private secretary, and Frankfort is his home.

The new place tendered him pays a salary of $3,000 a year, and his expenses are paid when called from home on business for the state.

NEGRO SOLDIERS GUILTY

Military Court, After Investigation, Finds Troops Did Shooting at Brownsville, Texas.

Washington, April 6.—The military court of inquiry which during the last year has been investigating the shooting up of Brownsville, Texas, finds that the evidence clearly sustains the charge that the shooting was done by soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, colored.

Henry Morton Dead.

Henry Morton, who for years has been an employee of the St. Bernard store at Mortons Gap, died at that city Friday of heart trouble. He was about 55 years of age. He was buried Sunday at Old Salem cemetery. A large number of his friends followed his remains to its last resting place.

Arbor Day.

Tomorrow, April 8, the Governor has designated as Arbor Day for Kentucky and the schools of the State will have appropriate exercises and plant trees around their school buildings. One should never eat down a tree without planting one in its place.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to all the friends who extended to us help and consolation in the death of our loved one, Tommie.

Mrs. NEWBORN WILSON AND FAMILY.

MINING NOTES.

Thos. Longstaff, Sr., of Shamrock mines, was in the city Tuesday on business.

Sam Morgan, extra weighman at the Arnold mine, returned Monday from a trip to Springfield, Tenn.

Jno. T. Barnett, of St. Louis, Mo., a former citizen of this place, is now connected with the St. Bernard at St. Charles as mine guard.

The Oak Hill mines were sold at the court house Monday afternoon by Kirby Gordon. They were bought in by Jno. B. Brasher for the Pleasant Run Coal Co. for $9,000, Judge Wm. Yost being the other bidder. They will be operated by that coal company.

Emmitt Powers Dead.

Mr. Emmitt Powers, aged 55 years, of Palmira, Tenn., died in this city Wednesday about 1:30 p. m. of pneumonia, and his remains were shipped to Palmira this morning. Mr. Powers had only been here a short time and was an employee of Mr. H. S. Corey. He leaves a wife and two children.

Col. Roosevelt Explains Vatican Incident to the American People

By Theodore Roosevelt

"Rome, April 3, 1910.

"To the Rev. Lyman Abbott, Editor of The Outlook, New York:

"Through The Outlook I wish to make a statement to my fellow American regarding what has occurred in connection with the Vatican.

"I am sure that the great majority of my fellow citizens, Catholics quite as much as Protestants, will feel that I acted in the only way possible for an American to act, and because of this very fact I most earnestly hope that the incident will be treated in a matter of course as a merely personal, and, above all, as not warranting the slightest exhibition of rancor or bitterness.

"Among my best and closest friends are many Catholics. The respect and regard of those of my fellow Americans who are Catholics are as dear to me as the respect and regard of those who are Protestants.

"On my journey through Africa I visited many Catholic missions. As I look forward to telling the people at home all that has been done by Protestants and Catholics alike, as I saw it, in the field of missionary endeavor, it would cause me a real pang to have anyone say or do that would hurt or give pain to my friends, whatever their religious belief.

"But any merely personal considerations are of no consequence in this matter. The important consideration is the avoidance of harsh and bitter comment such as may excite mistrust and anger between and among good men.

"The more an American sees of other countries the more profound must be his feelings of gratitude that in his own land there is not merely complete toleration, but the heartiest good will and sympathy between sincere and honest men of different faiths—good will and sympathy so complete that in the innumerable daily relations of our American life Catholics and Protestants meet together and work together without thought of the difference of creed being even present in their minds.

"This is a condition so vital to our national well being that nothing should be permitted to jeopardize it. Bitter comment and criticism, acrimonious attack and defense are not only profane but harmful, and to seize upon such an incident as this as an occasion for controversy would be wholly indefensible and should be frowned upon by Catholics and Protestants alike, and all good Americans.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE SHRINERS HAVE DOIN'S

Class Initiated at Madisonville and Good Times Had.

Combination of Madisonville and Earlinton Home Talent.

The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Rishap Temple held a very interesting ceremonial session Tuesday at Madisonville. A good class of novices were initiated and the attendance of nobles was good. The ladies were present at the banquet, as usual. Jas. R. Rash, the illustrious pontificate, acted as toastmaster. Besides several short responses, in the way of talks, there was a very interesting musical and literary program. Miss Ashby, of Madisonville, gave a delightful recital entitled "The Confession." Mrs. David Kinchelov rendered a whistling solo with orchestra accompaniment. Mrs. Jas. R. Rash sang a solo in her usual pleasing manner. Frank D. Rash had to respond to an encore after singing the peculiarly appropriate humorous song, "I'm a Minister's Son." Miss Katie Murrell, of the Earlinton Graded School faculty, was also forced to respond with a second selection, after having captured the crowd by a very clever interpretation of a humorous reading in which love and a horse race were tangled up with a girl for the prize. The Earlinton musicians of the Shrine were there with the goods as usual. Mr. Harry Anderson and his amateur Madisonville orchestra came in for praise and for a filling and satisfying program. Mrs. W. K. Nisbet was accompanist for the Earlinton soloists, in her usual accomplished manner.

Nortonville Canning Company Bought.

Esq. J. H. Shaw has bought the Nortonville Canning Company's plant for the sum of $800. It is said that the original cost of the plant was something like $6,000.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE

Being Held at the Baptist Church This Week is Largely Attended.

The Bible Institute of the Baptist church has been in session in this city since Monday. There are quite a number of preachers in the city and the program is varied. Sixteen men are down for addresses on different subjects. Large crowds are in attendance and much interest is being manifested. They will adjourn tomorrow and the visitors will return to their homes. From expressions heard, the visitors are well pleased with our town and the treatment they have received from our citizens.

Broadwell Had April Fool Luck.

Joplin, Mo., April 2.—A pocketbook containing $5,000 laid for three hours on the sidewalk in front of the Conner Hotel here yesterday and finally was recovered by the man who had lost it. William Broadwell, of St. Louis, dropped the wallet as he boarded an automobile in front of the hotel. A number of guests saw the wallet fall, but believing it to be an April fool joke, warily refrained from touching it. Three hours later Broadwell discovered his loss and hurriedly returned to the hotel. He found the pocketbook untouched on the sidewalk.

Mrs. J. W. Crawford Dead.

Mrs. Crawford, age 72 years old, mother of Mrs. Ernest Rash, died in this city Thursday night, March 25, about 11 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. Rash, of heart trouble. Mrs. Crawford's home is in Madisonville and she was here to visit her daughter. She leaves a son-in-law at Paris, Tenn., and a daughter at Bowling Green. She was buried at the Old Fellows' cemetery at Madisonville Friday afternoon, March 25. The B. E. extends its condolence to the bereaved family.

Night Rider to Pay Death Penalty.

Nashville, Tenn., April 2.—The supreme court today affirmed the finding of the lower court in the case of Marcellus Rinehart, the night rider who killed Rufe Hunter in Montgomery county, and sentenced him to be hanged on May 28.

Look out for the Confederate Daughters next week.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

The East End Club Club.

On Friday, April 1, the club was entertained by Mrs. Kline. Mesdames J. B. Atkinson, Rogers, Featherston and Hackney, Misses Rosell and Moorehead were guests of the club. Miss Lucy Crenshaw made the best score. Brick cream and cake were served by the hostess.

La So Con Club.

Miss Ruby Sisk entertained the La So Con Club Friday evening. The members were invited to make known their knowledge of geometry and astronomy. As a result, the La So Cons had some laughable encounters with cubes, and some rather distracting experiences with stars. Never were cubes more elusive, or stars more difficult to trace. While only a few of the La So Cons were winners in their disconcerting struggles with the former, with the latter all were more or less successful. During the social hour cream and cake were served. The favors were tiny fool's caps.

MONEY FOR THE OHIO

Forthcoming Bill Will Carry $4,650,000.

Over $1,000,000 in Cash—Remainder for Continuing Improvements.

Washington, April 5.—The forthcoming rivers and harbors bill will carry a total of $4,650,000 for the Ohio river.

Of this amount $1,150,000 is cash and $3,500,000 is authorized, with $500,000 cash for continuing improvements. The bill will be reported the latter part of the week.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, a member of the committee, said the bill is a pronounced step forward.

"There was a general feeling in the committee," said Senator Simmons, "that an annual river and harbor bill was essentially necessary to put our waterways in condition to handle our growing commerce. In a way the bill is carrying out one of the platforms of the National River and Harbors congress, and there should be a bond issue to take care of the improvements in the event that current revenues were not sufficient amount to make an appropriation of $50,000,000 for ten years possible."

MIST HIDES THAT COMET

Observers Can't See It Now Even With a Telescope—Where and When to Find It.

Chicago, April 5.—Chicago astronomers are waiting for the atmosphere to clear for their first near view of Halley's comet. Any night this week on which the sun sets clear with little vapor in the air may be taken as a signal that the comet may be observed in the eastern horizon before sun-up the next morning, they say. As it rises only a short time before daybreak, it will be visible so close to the horizon that any haze or mist in the air will obscure it.

"There hasn't been a favorable morning since April 1," said Father J. D. McHugh of DePaul University today. "I am hopeful that it will clear up by Friday, as the comet ought to be in very plain view by that time. Until the atmosphere becomes clearer, however, there is no hope of seeing it here in Chicago, even with instruments. If we could have another morning like last Friday, anyone who looked for the comet shortly before daylight could now see it."

WOULD MAKE NATION AS DRY AS A BONE

Southern Anti-Saloon League Adopts Resolutions at the Atlanta Meeting.

Atlanta, Ga., April 4.—Resolutions advocating national prohibition, calling upon churches to aid in the fight for prohibition and condemning interstate commerce laws as they now stand, allowing the shipment of liquors from a wet to a dry state, were adopted.

DEED OF CONSUMPTION

At the Home of His Mother Last Thursday Night.

Thomas Wilson, aged sixteen years old, died last Thursday night at the home of his mother of consumption, and was buried Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Tommie had been an invalid for nearly a year and has been a patient suffer. The B. E. extends its condolence to his mother, brothers and sisters.

TEDDY DINES WITH KING

TALKS WITH HIM PRIVATELY FOR ALMOST AN HOUR.

Former President Visits Tombs of Raphael, King Victor Emmanuel and Humbert.

Rome.—Twice ex-President Theodore Roosevelt was the guest of King Victor Emmanuel on Monday. The king received the ex-president at an early hour at the Quirinal with particular warmth, and they talked together for nearly an hour. In the evening there was a grand dinner at the palace given by the king and queen in honor of Col. Roosevelt and his family. Great preparations have been going on for this event, and the queen herself directed all the arrangements, desiring that no detail should be neglected.

Following the audience, Mr. Roosevelt said the king had been so gracious and flattering both to him personally and to his country that he felt he should not make public anything concerning their conversation.

The formalities of the reception concluded, King Victor personally conducted Mr. Roosevelt to the hall of the palace. When the time came to say goodbye his majesty invited Mr. Roosevelt to drive with him Tuesday morning. The sovereign explained that though they would dine together at the court, he desired to see and talk with his guest further alone.

From the Quirinal Mr. Roosevelt drove to the Pantheon. Beyond the charm of his ancient memories, this spot is sacred, as it contains the tombs of Raphael, King Victor Emmanuel, the father of his country, and King Humbert. At the entrance to the temple Mr. Roosevelt was saluted by the veterans of the wars of Italian unification, who for thirty-two years have guarded night and day the tomb of their chief.

The guest shook hands with each of the veterans, congratulating them upon the honorable duty in which they were engaged and saying that he had wished not to leave Rome without paying tribute of respect to the memory of one of the founders of United Italy. He brought two wreaths, which were placed upon the tombs of Victor Emmanuel II and Humbert.

The determination of Mr. Roosevelt to forego an audience with Pope Pius X rather than subscribe to the conditions imposed by the Vatican has created a sensation. This was the first unexpected incident overshadowed every other feature of the distinguished American's visit to the Eternal City.

Mr. Roosevelt sought an audience with the pontiff through an ambassador. The ambassador and received a reply that the holy father would be delighted to receive him, but that the pope was busy with an expression of the hope that the audience would not be prevented by such a regrettable incident as made an audience for Vice-President Fairbanks impossible.

Mr. Roosevelt in turn stated that he could not accept any stipulation limiting his freedom of conversation with the pope. To the latter message the Vatican made answer that the audience could not take place excepting on the understanding first made known to the incident.

Mr. Roosevelt insists that the incident be treated as purely personal and earnestly hopes that it will not give rise to any bitterness. He appreciates the attitude of the Vatican, but feels that as a free American citizen he cannot consistently take any action that might be construed as involving a limitation of the freedom of his personal conduct.

URGENT NATIONAL PROHIBITION
Anti-Saloon League Urges Southerners to Support Bill.

Atlanta, Ga.—Resolutions advocating national prohibition will appear at all churches to aid in the fight for prohibition and condemning interstate commerce laws as they now stand, allowing the shipment of liquors from one state to dry state, were adopted at the closing session of the Southern Anti-Saloon League convention here Monday.

A resolution was adopted urging all Southern representatives and senators to support the Miller-Orr bill now pending in congress, which provides for the segregation of liquors into two classes, one for interstate commerce and permits any state to seize liquors shipped within its territory contrary to its laws.

Texas Wins Oil Case.
Washington.—The supreme court of the United States decided the case of the Southwestern Oil Company versus the State of Texas in favor of the state, upholding the constitutionality of the Texas state law known as the Kennedy tax law, which fixes a tax of two per cent. on the gross receipts from the sale of oil, naptha, etc.

The court held that a classification of wholesale dealers as distinct from retail dealers for purposes of taxation was a proper exercise of state power.

New Rope Halter.
Every stockman knows how inconvenient a stiff new rope halter can be. A new rope may be made its glabrous as old, it is claimed, by simply boiling it for two hours in water. Then hang it in a warm room and let it dry thoroughly.

BRYAN'S HOME COMING

WANTS NO DEMONSTRATION WHEN HE LANDS IN NEW YORK.

Is Sincere in the Matter and His Wishes Will Be Regarded by His Friends.

Hot Springs, Ark.—William Jennings Bryan, writing from Buenos Ayres to Chairman Norman D. Mack of the national Democratic committee, urges that no demonstration of any sort be made over his arrival in New York. "Anything of this sort would be misconstrued and misinterpreted," is the language of Mr. Bryan. The letter was dated February 28, more than five weeks ago, and has been delayed in transmission, besides having to be forwarded after reaching this country. Mr. Bryan states in the letter that the matter had just been brought to his attention in the Buenos Ayres press, that there were being made in New York arrangements for a reception for the distinguished Nebraskan.

I prefer to arrive and go immediately West to my home," is another quotation permitted from a personal letter, written to Mr. Mack as a personal friend of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Mack stated in connection with the letter that it was a request that should be regarded, as Mr. Bryan was sincere in the matter, and had made himself as plain as necessary in the quotation. "Anything of that sort will be misconstrued or misinterpreted."

FIGURES COST OF LIVING

Wages Do Not Keep Pace with Price of Foodstuffs.

Washington.—Senator Lodge, chairman of the select committee which is investigating the cost of living, Monday presented to the senate a mass of data supplied by committee officers in Europe. Although it is difficult to make comparisons in the forms in which the data is given, the committee is convinced that the wage will show that wages in European country have kept pace with wages in America, and foodstuffs have advanced out of proportion to income, especially as applied to the laboring classes.

The committee expects later to analyze the figures and make a special report covering this character of information.

AMBASSADOR TO WORLD.

Rev. Dr. MacArthur Selects New Post for Roosevelt.

New York.—I nominate Theodore Roosevelt for ambassador extraordinary to all the courts of the world in the interests of universal and perpetual peace," said the Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur Sunday to his current evening class in Calvary Baptist church. His proposal was applauded. Dr. MacArthur was discussing "What shall we do with Col. Roosevelt?"

"No man exalted mission can be named for any man in the world today," Dr. MacArthur continued. "The time is coming when the nations shall learn to war no more. Here we have a notable example of the varied talents, remarkable skill and wide experience of Col. Roosevelt. He has the ear of the civilized world in places high and low as no other man ever had. To him doors of palaces and cabinets will readily open."

Bones of Confederate Dead.
Gettysburg, Pa.—A few human bones are the contents of a shallow grave just found at the foot of East Cemetery hill. The bones are supposed to be those of a Confederate soldier who was killed in the battle of Gettysburg. The bones were found on the morning of July 2, 1863, charged the steep declivity and spiked the guns of Weidrich's Federal battery. The Confederate was driven back to their position at the foot of the hill. Evidently this body was missed when the Confederate dead on this battlefield were exhumed and taken to Hollywood cemetery at Richmond.

Railway Costs $9,600,000 a Mile.
New York.—The Pennsylvania railroad opened to public inspection for the first time today 16.5 miles of the most expensive construction work, foot for foot, ever attempted—namely, its tunnel and terminal improvements from Harrison, N. J., to Sunbury, Long Island. The average cost of a mile of steam railroad is about $25,000; the cost per mile of the tunnel and terminal improvement has been more than $9,600,000. The company has thus far expended $10,000,000 and will spend $10,000,000 more for the improvement is completed.

JAP CASE GROWS GRAVE

JAPANESE STATE DEPARTMENT BEHIND MOVE FOR MEN.

U. S. State Department Non-Committal on Order Sent to Attorney-General of Philippine Islands.

Washington.—The question of the Japanese spies held at Manila by this government has become an important if not a serious affair.

Instructions were cable Thursday to the attorney general and the secretary of justice of the Philippines by the war department, detailing the proper proceedings.

These instructions, it is stated, are concurred in by the state department, although the state department declares it has nothing to do with the case.

The silence of the state department in the matter is justifiable, because it is excellent authority that the Japanese foreign office is behind the application of the two spies for release on habeas corpus.

It is admitted that if this case should, by any unforeseen circumstances, become one of negotiation between the state department and the Japanese foreign office, the issue would be very doubtful.

If the state department should yield to the Japanese contention, it would be because the state department chose to ignore a specific Philippine law which covers and can heavily punish the offense of the spies.

The aggravation of the offense of the two Japanese prisoners lies in the fact that they were endeavoring to get information which is concealed from the press at Washington.

The case of the prisoners is regarded as one of extreme delicacy. It includes elements, any one of which, should it go wrong, would involve the United States in a direct question of national honor with Japan.

NEW OIL CO. BUYS WELLS

Holland Concern Spends $5,000,000 in Oklahoma.

Bartlesville, Okla.—George C. Priestley, of Bartlesville, who executed the transaction by which Eastern capitalists recently secured options on the habing of about twenty Oklahoma oil companies for a Holland syndicate, received a message from New York stating that the contracts had been signed and the deal fully consummated.

The transaction involves over $5,000,000 and some of the best oil lands in the state. The purchasing syndicate announces that a pipe line to the gulf will be constructed soon. This, if true, gives denial to the current report that the Standard Oil Company was making the purchase. It is believed that the transfer will increase the price of oil, and independent operators expect a new and far-advanced era in oil and gas development in Oklahoma.

FLOODS IN LONE STAR STATE

Snow Adds to the Effects of Unprecedented Rains.

San Antonio, Tex.—Almost incessant rains for three days have put streams in this section of the country on such a rampage as has not been recorded in twenty years.

In Valde county, west of here, beside the river, and down to the mouth of the Neches river, 1,000 goats, which had been sheared early in the month, perished from the cold and rain. The men in the country also lost thousands of dollars, the flood having reached their aparies. At Fort Davis and Marfa, still further west, two inches of snow has fallen, and fruit and young vegetables are killed.

The loss will total high into the thousands, but is small compared with the benefits which will accrue to the farmers and stockmen from the rains.

NEW COTTON BILL PROBABLE

Proposed Legislation Will Not Effect Grain Exchanges.

Washington.—It is probable there will be a new cotton anti-trust bill, but it is unlikely to be known as the Scott bill, to cover amendments to the original measure introduced by Chairman Scott, of the house committee on agriculture, providing transactions in futures in commodity markets.

It is practically settled, so far as the sub-committee on agriculture is concerned, that the grain exchanges will not be affected by the proposed legislation, the sub-committee taking the position that there is no sentiment in the West for such an extension of grain futures as in the case of the cotton exchange.

Don't Need $30,000,000.

Washington.—The proposition to issue $30,000,000 in government certificates of indebtedness for the purpose of completing old and new irrigation projects, one of the administration's conservation measures, which has been under consideration by the house ways and means committee, is not likely to be a fact, was discussed by Director Fred H. Newell of the reclamation service. Mr. Newell told the committee that about $7,000,000 annually is being put in the reclamation service, which was sufficient to complete existing projects.

Can Governor Change Mind.

Frankfort, Ky.—Whether the governor of Kentucky may legally exercise the common privilege of changing his mind is a question which very probably will be submitted to the courts. Gov. Willard vetoed the bill amending the pure food law so as to allow oleomargarine to be sold when colored, if it was so branded. Later he recalled the measure and rescinded the veto. It is now expected that after the bill passed into the hands of the secretary of state it will be beyond the control of the executive.

THOMAS JEFFERSON'S HOME AS IT APPEARS TODAY

By WALDON LAWLETT

THE ARRIVAL of the month of April, with its recurring anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, has served again to direct public attention to the project for securing as a national memorial the mansion and estate of Monticello, the famous Virginia home of the author of the Declaration of Independence. Next to Mount Vernon, Monticello is undoubtedly the most historic and most interesting private habitation in America. Not only was it the residence for more than half a century of one of the most admirable heroes of the republic and the last century's most celebrated render-the sleeping chamber in which Jefferson died.

The house at Monticello was 22 years in building. Begun in 1770, it was not completed until 1802 and it cost, according to the account books of the famous architect and builder, the sum of $7,200. The bricks were not imported from England, as in the case of many of the old Virginia mansions, but were made on the ground by the slaves, of which Jefferson had at one time several hundred. The ornamental the resources of the Sage of Monticello, who had not at any time in his life a fortune of more than a quarter of a million dollars. In entertaining his guests, many of whom were almost total strangers, who came from idleness or curiosity, Jefferson went heavily into debt. In an effort to extricate himself he sold a large portion of his estate and even failed to dispose of Monticello by lottery, but the legislature of Virginia would not sanction the sale. He did, however, sell to the United States Congress his vous for statesmen, but this stately mansion, designed and built as well as occupied by Thomas Jefferson stands today in a perfect state of preservation, the finest remaining example of the old southern plantation manor house of the colonial period.

This noble seat, which ranked as the most imposing in Virginia at a period when the Old Dominion was dotted over with baronial holdings, is situated in the broken and picturesque Piedmont region and is reached from the quaint little city of Charlottesville via a winding road that has a sharp incline. En route to the eminence on which the mansion stands the visitor passes the tomb in the woods where repose the remains of the famous master of Monticello.

The nucleus of Thomas Jefferson's Virginia estate he inherited from his father, the tract comprising some 1,900 acres. At that time "the best highlands of Albemarle" were rated as worth not more than $2 per acre, but the earning capacity of the property is indicated by the fact that from the outset it netted Jefferson not less than $2,000 a year. The founder of the Democratic party gradually increased his holdings and in the year 1774 possessed more than 5,000 acres. Then several fine farms came to him as his wife's dower and thus the period of the Revolution found him one of the richest landed proprietors in the south.

Jefferson chose as the site of his home the crest of a hill which he designated Monticello, the Italian for Little Mountain. Assuredly no more beautiful or inspiring location could be imagined and veteran travelers all agree that the magnificent panorama which lies spread out before the gaze of the observer on this height is unsurpassed anywhere in the world. The little mountain on the apex of which Jefferson placed his residence is 580 feet high and in the form of a cone. It slopes eastward one and one-half miles to the Rivanna river.

Jefferson's birthplace is in sight of the portico at Monticello. Seemingly almost directly below is the University of Virginia, which was founded by Jefferson. President Monroe lived eight miles down the valley and the home of President Madison was but a few miles north. Incidentally it may be mentioned in passing that these three ex-presidents of the United States assembled at Monticello to welcome Lafayette on the occasion of his visit to the United States. From the cupola of his mansion Jefferson could gaze upon 12 of the richest counties of Virginia, and in one direction the view extends to the Blue Ridge mountains, nearly 50 miles away.

The top of the hill which Jefferson had designated Monticello he had leveled off for a building site, 600 by 200 feet in size. On this he erected his spacious mansion, which, with its wings or colonnades, is in the form of a gigantic letter E. The center of the letter is the mansion proper, while extending from it in positions somewhat corresponding to the arms of the E are wings, the flat roofs of which form promenades. The arrangement of the house is so far as these wings extend from it in positions somewhat corresponding to the arms of the E are wings, the flat roofs of which form promenades. The arrangement of the house is so far as these wings extend from it in positions somewhat corresponding to the arms of the E are wings, the flat roofs of which form promenades.

The mansion at Monticello is of the Doric order of Grecian architecture, with heavy cornices and massive balustrades. The interior is in the Ionic style and it must be admitted that there is little about this magnificent home suggestive of Jeffersonian simplicity. The front hall reaches six feet within the wall of the building and a portico projects about 25 feet, with stone pillars and steps.

In the interior the hall or main room of the house extends to the full height of the building and is typical of the spaciousness of the house. There is a gallery under the ceiling where the ladies of the household could observe all that went on at the receptions which Jefferson frequently gave and where the band was stationed when he gave a ball. Opening from this hall are the salon or drawing room, the library, where Jefferson housed the major portion of his famous collection of 13,000 books, the dining room and material for the house was brought from Philadelphia and every nail used in the construction was forged in a nail factory which Jefferson established on the place and a memento of which is found in the vine-covered ruin of the brick building provided for this manufactory.

After serving two terms as president of the United States Jefferson took up his residence at Monticello and there led a life very similar to that of Washington at Mount Vernon. Monticello was, from this time forward, the scene of the most lavish hospitality ever known even in a land famous for its hospitality. In the end Jefferson, kind-hearted and pleased to play the host, was imposed upon unmercifully. Life at Monticello, for years, resembled that at a famous watering place.

Whole families journeyed to Monticello in their coaches—parties made up of fathers and mothers, children and nurses—and remained for periods of from three to six months. One family of six persons came from Europe and made a visit of ten months. After a short tour of the United States they returned and remained six months longer. One man came to present a letter of introduction and remained three weeks. Thirty-seven house servants were required for the domestic service, as can be imagined when it is stated that as many as 50 guests were frequently entertained over night at Monticello.

Naturally such "grafting" was too much for valuable library, a sacrifice that cost him more mental anguish than any other he could have made. However, he died with many of his obligations yet undischarged, but he left to the credit of his heirs, every debt was ultimately paid.

After the death of Jefferson Monticello passed into the hands of a man who found himself unable to keep up the estate and who eventually sold it to Commodore Levy, a retired officer of the United States navy, for the sum of $10,000. Levy several times offered it to the United States government or to patriotic societies, but none of them ever accepted his offer—it is said because he wanted too high a price. At his death the property passed to his son, Jefferson M. Levy, a New York lawyer, who has made some effort to preserve Monticello in its pristine glory. Monticello is visited by increasing numbers of tourists every year and bids fair to become in time the strongest rival of Mount Vernon as a shrine for patriotic Americans.

Golden City's Hindu Temple

The city, it appears, is honored by having built quite recently the first Hindu temple in the western world, or, to be more exact, in the United States, a San Francisco letter to the Portland Oregonian says. The temple has been constructed under the supervision of those of the Vedantic faith.

The temple is in charge of two Hindus, both swami, or high priests of their faith, the chief of these being a Hindu named Prakashananda, who directs affairs. The building, which is a three-story structure, is copied after the great temples of India. The first two stories are after the style of the ordinary American dwelling, but the third takes on the Oriental style. There is a balcony with Moorish columns and it is on this balcony that the Brahmanacharins, or neophytes, as the ten white men who aspire to priesthood are known, take their daily exercises. Some of these neophytes work at daily labor, but for the most part they remain in the temple and do only sacred work.

On the roof of the temple are small towers, which are duplications of the predominating features of the big temples in India. In view of the fact that this is the first temple of its kind erected in America, there is, surmounting all, an American eagle.

Said, the first thing that strikes the visitor is the absolute lack of the Oriental in the furnishings. Everything is severely American. There is an assembly hall capable of seating 200 people and it is here that the lectures are given. Across the street is a nursery, in which there

SELF-DEFENSE WAS PROVED.

McNamee Exonerated and Brother of Victim Shakes Him by the Hand.

Lexington, Ky.—Robert McNamee, who shot and killed Thomas W. McNamara in the home of Blanche Pat, March 23, was dismissed of the charge of murder at his examining trial before County Judge Scott. By the testimony of Blanche Pat, Emma Morganson and himself, McNamee proved a case of self-defense, and Night Chief of Police William Jenkins testified that McNamee on his deathbed had requested that McNamee be neither arrested or prosecuted for shooting him. McNamee testified that he ran from the house naked after the shooting, went back for his clothes, dressed, got out on an early morning train for Columbus, O., remained there until after McNamara's funeral and surrendered at the county jail here.

Edward McNamara, brother of the dead man, who was the only member of the family active in the prosecution, walked over to McNamee and grasped him by the hand and said he wanted to show him that he bore no ill feeling against him. McNamara also shook hands with the father, mother and uncle of McNamee, as well as the attorney for the defense and friends of the young man.

NO PROMISE OF POSITIONS.

Panama Canal Zone Patronage Is Deferred.

Frankfort, Ky.—M. H. Thatcher, who has been appointed a member of the Panama Canal Commission, returned here from La Grange, where he had been in conference with Senator W. O. Bradley. He made the following statement: "I have not yet secured my bearings. I do not know what patronage attaches to the appointment nor will I undertake to make any promises of positions. The present law provides for the 'Isthmian Canal Commission' and I have been named as one of its members. The commission is in charge of the canal zone and canal construction. The commission, I take it, acts as a body. I do not know when I will leave for Panama. It may be several weeks yet. I have a number of official and business matters to adjust before leaving and I hope to be given time therefore."

JOHNSTON'S REPORT

Says the Kentucky National Guard is in Fine Condition.

Frankfort, Ky.—According to the annual report of Adj. Gen. P. P. Johnston, submitted to Gov. Wilson, the national guard of Kentucky was never in a better condition than at present. Under Adj. Gen. Johnston are Lieut. Col. Thomas W. Woodruff, on duty in the quartermaster's department; Judge W. L. Jett, who has charge of the Confederate Veterans; Lieut. Col. A. McLean Moffett, who is in charge of the inspector general's department; Col. Woodruff reports that there was on deposit Dec. 10, 1907, to the credit of the governor claims for services of Kentucky troops in the Spanish-American war $22,540.65, and that the outgoing governor disbursed $13,201.73, leaving a balance of $9,338.92 to be disbursed.

"TEMPORARILY INSANE."

Culley Is Freed on Charge of Slaying Proctor.

Louisville, Ky.—"Not guilty on account of temporary insanity," read the verdict returned by the jury in the case of Robert M. Culley, who was freed after he was tried for the murder of W. E. Proctor. The verdict of the jury caused confusion on account of its wording. A big crowd remained about the courthouse until the verdict was brought in. Culley shot Proctor after his wife told of an alleged assault at the hands of the latter.

Louisville, Ky.—Within the next few weeks the Louisville Railway Co. will begin the work of extending the Fern Creek interurban line to Mt. Washington. The new line will bring Louisville and Fern Creek into communication with a rich and populous part of the county.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.—Two hundred thousand pounds of tobacco owned by the Burley Tobacco Co., the Lawrenceburg Supply Co., the poultry house of A. Hawkins & Co., and the Lexington tobacco store were destroyed by fire here, entailing a loss of $75,000. Origin of the fire is a mystery.

Frankfort, Ky.—Cecil Fraser, aged 53 years, park engineer for Louisville and assistant landscaper on the capital grounds, died here from paralysis with which he was stricken in Gov. Willson's office while attending a meeting of the Capitol Commission.

Leitchfield, Ky.—Charles Carroll, a 16-year-old son of a prominent farmer, was assassinated at his home at Goffs, Edmonson county, by a band of 12 masked men. Carroll was called to the door of his home and shot in the back.

ANXIOUS FOR SUCCESSOR.

Superintendent Crabbe Desires to Assume New Duties.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Willson is the busiest man in Kentucky now, preparing to assume some more republican plea. He has several very important jobs that he must fill. The most important is that of the office of state superintendent of public instruction. Superintendent Crabbe would like to have the governor act on his resignation as soon as possible, for he desires to take part in the commencement exercises of the Eastern Normal school as the president of the institution. Prof. Ellsworth Regnier, of Newport, is mentioned as Crabbe's successor. Gov. Willson has his name under consideration, but there is no telling for it is understood that Gov. Willson has a great admiration for former County Superintendent Taylor, of Pulaski county, who was sacrificed by the new school law.

There Thatcher's old job. The office of State Inspector and Examiner M. H. Thatcher will become vacant as soon as he receives his commission as a member of the Panama Canal Zone Commission.

W. E. Bidwell, formerly the head of the banking department under Secretary of State Brunner, is tipped for the job. He is one of Gov. Willson's favorites. This position pays $2,500 a year.

By June 1 the printing commission, of which Gov. Willson is a member and chairman, must appoint a successor to J. W. Kedden, the present superintendent of public printing.

Another good job to be given out is that of the clerk, book after the stamping and recording of the interest-bearing warrants. This place was created by the recent legislature, and the clerk will be appointed by Treasurer Parley. It is probable that for a while at least the clerk in the treasurer's office will do the work and split the salary.

Gov. Willson may also have the appointment of the appellate judge from the fourth district to succeed Judge Henry S. Barker, who will become the president of the State university in September.

It is understood, too, that Floyd Thatcher, secretary to Commissioner Rabkin, is going to Panama as the secretary to his uncle, M. H. Thatcher, and this will leave a job open for a young man or a young woman in that department. All of these places pay from $100 a month on up.

"TRIM IT UP, DOC."

Said Boy to Physician After Left Foot Was Crushed.

Louisville, Ky.—"Say, stop this elevator; you're torn my foot off," was the startling statement of a 12-year-old boy running the elevator at the Louisville & Nashville office building here by Heron Stanley, aged 15, when his left foot was caught between the elevator and the second floor landing. The boy was game to the core, and when the elevator had been taken to the lower floor he hopped over into the surgeon's office and said without the suggestion of a tremor: "Say, doc, my foot has been mashed off. Won't you trim it up a little?" Dr. George R. Brown, who was called for, attended the boy, said that he had the most wonderful nerve of anybody he had ever seen.

Lancaster, Ky.—Edward H. Walker died at his home in this county after a lingering illness of blood poisoning. Mr. Walker was the eldest of the famous Walkers, and particularly to those of his family who are noted as fox hunters. Several times he has been president of the National Fox Hunters' association. He will be buried at Paint Lick, Ky.

Covington, Ky.—Warrants were sworn out by John P. Eggs, Jr., and John T. Vest for the arrest of W. T. Stephens and J. N. Jackson, of Piner, Ky., who are charged with selling 4,000 pounds of pooled tobacco, and Richard Thomas and Ernest Wilson, of Nicholas, Ky., for selling 5,000 pounds of pooled tobacco.

Glasgow, Ky.—The body of the old Lincoln cabin, which has been stored in Louisville since the 18th day of May last, were carried to Hodgenville and are being hauled to the Lincoln farm, where they will be placed in the new Memorial Hall and stay until time is no more.

Louisville, Ky.—James P. Heim, 56 years old, one of Louisville's best known attorneys, died.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Eugene Pool, mail carrier J. & N. W. was arrested at Nashville, by Special Postal Agent C. J. Patterson and brought here, charged with robbing mails. He was indicted and bond was fixed at $2,000.

Newport, Ky.—Former Sheriff John P. Noel, who was indicted for a crime in the credit courts to an indictment charging him with failing to perform an official duty in the suppression of a riot, and an agreed fine of $250 and costs were ordered.

When Earlington Citizens Show the Certain Way Out

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes or any kidney ill when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what an Earlington citizen says:

John Franklin, Earlington, Ky., says: "For three years my kidneys were disordered. When I stooped or lifted, sharp twinges darted through my loins and there was an almost constant pain in the small of my back. I tired easily, frequently suffered from headaches and was also bothered by dizzy spells. I was caused additional annoyance by too frequent secretions, it being necessary for me to arise several times during the night. I finally procured Doan's Kidney Pills and received such prompt relief from their use that I continued taking them until completely cured. I cannot recommend Doan's Kidney Pills too highly."

Awful Tale of Suffering From Kidney Trouble.

Alfred J. O'Brien, Second St., Sterling, Colo., says: "I was in the Baldi more Marine Hospital for nine months. I had a dull pain in the small of my back that completely wore me out. The urine was in a terrible state, and some of the doctors said I would pass half a gallon of blood. I left the hospital because they wanted to operate on me. I went to St. Joseph's Hospital at Omaha and put in three months there without any gain. I was pretty well discouraged when I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so and by the time I had taken one box, the pain in the back left me. I kept right on and a perfect cure was the result."

DEMOCRATS SEEM SURE OF VICTORY

Confident That They Will Be In Control of Sixty-Second Congress.

REPUBLICANS SMILE AT CLAIM

Declares Opponents by Blunder Destroyed Their Best Issue—Arizona and New Mexico Putting Forward Strong Claims for Statehood.

Washington.—The Democrats in the house of representatives seemingly have lost none of their confidence that they are to be in control when the Sixty-second congress comes together in December, 1911. The regular Republicans say that the Democrats committed a tactical blunder when they allied themselves with the insurgents in the effort to defeat what had come to be known as Cannonism. The old-time regulars declare that the time of the conflict should be postponed. The members of both factions in the Republican party want to be re-elected to congress and each side realizes apparently that the great hope of the return of a majority of Republicans lies in concord for the rest of the session and in the passage of administration measures so that the present majority party can go before the country with at least a semblance of harmony. The members of the insurgents and regulars seem to be of the opinion that they may be able to say to the country that while they had their troubles they finally came together and passed a harmonious bill for the honor of the party. The party has outlined in the planks of the national platform adopted at the convention in Chicago two years ago next June.

The Democrats do not believe that the Republicans can keep in a harmonious state even for the rest of the session.

Eager to Become States.
Arizona and New Mexico may be expected to wait "until a more convenient season" for the honor of statehood. The party in power has promised that the territorial form of government soon shall be a thing of the past, but the question which the representatives of the two territories who are anxious for statehood would like to have answered is just what is meant by "soon."

The friends of statehood, in their anxiety, cannot see any other reason for the further exclusion of the territories from the union except the political reason that the Republicans do not want to add to the senate's Democratic membership just at the present time. The Republicans are of the opinion, while saying that they are not opposed to statehood after proper preparations for it can be made, deny that political considerations are anything to do with their unwillingness to act quickly or, as they put it, hastily. It is not altogether assured, however, that the territories are to be given statehood at once their legislatures would elect four Democratic senators.

Dealing with Mexican Element.
There is a considerable element in the population of Arizona and New Mexico which is of Mexican extraction. Thousands of these people have kept their old Mexican ways and a great many of them cannot speak English. It has been proposed to deny suffrage to all men excepting those capable of speaking English.

The desire of Republicans who are not opposed to statehood even at the present time is that if administration votes to the territories they shall hold their constitutional conventions and their elections of state officers at different times. It is held by the advocates of this plan that in the scramble for the offices the people might be led to adopt constitutions without proper study of their conditions. This is said, would happen unless the voting on the ratification of the constitutions and on the election for state officers were held at widely separated times.

It is yet problematic whether or not statehood for the two territories will come to a vote at the present session of congress. Even those who are opposed to admitting them into the United States say that the time is not far distant when they must be admitted, because neither party can afford to ignore the promise that it has made. The Republicans, it is claimed, if they continue in power, cannot afford to be heedless for any great length of time of the president's recommendation in favor of granting the rights of states to the two southwestern territories.

Defense of Railroad Bill.
The troubles in the house of representatives, the debate in the senate on the interstate commerce bill, and other matters, have rather shadowed the issue of statehood for the two territories, but within the shadow no less there has been a half obscured scene of activity. It does not seem probable that the demand of the territories for a new form of government which will make them states of the union will long be denied, but if the friends of immediate action are to be successful, the Republicans are none too anxious just now to give the territories admission because the majority party does not wish immediate action to add four Democratic congressmen to the minority party's representation in the upper house.

GEORGE CLINTON.

who because of sympathy with the trials of the unfortunals will endeavor to secure for them and their measure such recognition as is possible. The rules committee does not set on many bills but the influence of the members always has been great.

Now that the committee has been enlarged the Democrats probably will exercise more influence than they did when the committee was smaller. The regular Republicans know that there is a likelihood any time that the insurgents and the Democrats may get together once more and defeat any measure which the minority party and the majority of the majority party consider as being of a nature likely to cause a return of the old conditions of house control. At any time the combination of the insurgents and the Democrats can force the election of new rules committee by joining forces, passing a resolution to that effect and compelling the election of the rules members in the open house.

For these reasons the organization Republicans on the rules committee, it is believed, unquestionably will pay the greater heed to objections which may be offered at the committee meetings by the Democratic minority membership.

Future Conflicts Unlikely.
Both the regular and insurgent Republicans seem to realize that if there is to be any further sharp fighting in the ranks of the Republican party the time of the conflict should be postponed. The members of both factions in the Republican party want to be re-elected to congress and each side realizes apparently that the great hope of the return of a majority of Republicans lies in concord for the rest of the session and in the passage of administration measures so that the present majority party can go before the country with at least a semblance of harmony.

NOT LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

Young Man Unnecessarily Alarmed
Over Question Put to Him by Old Gentleman.

A quiet, handsome sort of a young fellow was making a call on a Capitol hill girl one evening not so very long ago, when her father came into the parlor with a note in his hand. It was about half past nine o'clock. At the moment the young man was standing on a chair, straightening a picture over the piano. The girl had asked him to fix it. As he turned the old gentleman, a gruff, stout fellow, said:

"Young man, do you know what time it is?"

The bashful young fellow got the chair nervously. "Yes, sir," he replied. "It was just going."

He went into the hall without any delay and took his hat and coat. The girl's father followed him. As the caller reached for the doorknob the old gentleman again asked him if he knew what time it was.

"Yes, sir," was the youth's reply. "Good-night!" And he left without waiting to put his coat on.

After the door had closed the old gentleman turned to the girl.

"What's the matter with that fellow?" he asked. "My watch ran down this afternoon and I wanted him to tell me the time so that I could set it."

Money and expense are not essential to a life of luxury and comfort. One dollar and fifty cents' worth of material will completely transform a crude, insubstantial room into a graceful, dainty apartment.

Really it is good taste and skill that makes the home homelike. That dainty touch is worth twice as much as money.

Wall paper is expensive—it costs money to buy it, to hang it and again to remove it. With the use of alabaster wall there is only the slight cost of the material—any one can hang it up—no need of a painter.

When a fresh coat is required, it is not necessary to wash it off the wall when a fresh coat is required.

Very few men know how to keep still. The Italians have a proverb, "Hear, see, and say nothing, if you wish to live in peace." The man who is bent on telling all he knows, generally ends in telling a good deal more than he knows. The tongue is harder to bridle than the wildest horse that ever roared on the prairie. The man says truly that talking comes by nature, while silence comes by the understanding.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her

Knoxville, Iowa.—"I suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more and was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work. I wrote to Lydia E. Pinkham and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am glad to say that your medicines and kind letters of directions have done more for me than anything else I had. The best physicians here, I can do my work and rest well at night. I believe there is nothing like the Pinkham remedies."

Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D. No. 3, Knoxville, Iowa.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be called the standard remedy for women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

Peruse carefully this page of offerings and note the immense savings that may be affected in each line. BE SURE AND READ THIS: Realizing I haven't room for both white and colored people in my loom-end calico department at the same time, I have decided to have special times for the colored people, which I think will meet with the approval of all. During these 6 mornings no one will be allowed in the loom-end calico department but colored people. ## Mortons Gap News.

The contractors have been making the dirt fly for the last few weeks.

Quite a number of men and teams are busily engaged hauling ties for the new railroad.

Mr. W. G. Byars, the resident engineer, has just returned from a trip to Eastern Kentucky.

Bring your prescriptions to the St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, drug department, Mortons Gap, Ky. Nothing but first class articles used.

Last Monday night there was a meeting at the opera house for the purpose of taking steps to secure the erection of a school building at this place.

Call at St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, drug department, Mortons Gap, for anything in sewing machine repairs. Also for a first class machine oil.

The recent rains have been enjoyed by everybody. March will go down on record as being the driest March ever known. The prospects for a fine crop year are splendid.

"Cheerful's Aunt" was put on the boards March 31 and was heartily enjoyed by all present. It was pronounced by everybody as being the best show of the season. We understand that it is the intention to put the same play on at White Plains in the near future.

Mr. R. B. Morton died last Saturday morning and was buried at Salem church. Mr. Morton was about 66 years old and had been in the employ of the St. Bernard Mining Co. as a salesman in their store for the past six years. He was a man who had friends by the score who are left to mourn his departure. He was honest and upright in all his dealings and generous to a fault. His wife died several years ago. He left an only child, the wife of our townsman, John T. Davis.

Kentucky is one of the richest states in the union in point of natural resources. We are far down in the scale on education. Hopkins county ranks well towards the front in wealth. What are we doing for our children here in Mortons Gap?

Practically nothing. The most of us think that because we have gotten along in a way without any education our children can do likewise. How can we expect our children to keep pace with those communities where they have the best of school advantages? They can not do it. Our people are sleeping. We trust that some day they will wake up. We certainly need a school building. Our present building is a disgrace to the county and town. We have the poorest facilities for a school of any town in the county, and almost we imagine, in the State. We have over 200 children in our district and they have been crowded up in two little ramshackle rooms with no advantages whatever. Many progressive farmers would hesitate to put their stock in such a place. We trust the people of Mortons Gap will wake up on the school question and make a fight for better educational advantages.

Saved From the Grave.

"I had about given up hope, after nearly four years of suffering from a severe lung trouble," writes Mrs. M. D. Dix of Clarksville, Tenn. "Often the pain in my chest would be almost unbearable and I could not do any work, but Dr. King's New Discovery has made me feel like a new person. It's the best medicine made for the throat and lungs." Obsolete coughs, stubborn colds, hay fever, the grippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis and hemorrhages, hoarseness and whooping cough yield quickly to this wonderful medicine. Try it. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Custom Plowing

New Industry in Western Farm Country

By G. WELLESLEY BRABBIT

NEW INDUSTRY, that of power plowing, has sprung up in the west and northwest within the last decade.

When the Dakotas, Montana, Canada and parts of Texas were opened to agriculture the farms were so large that horses could not supply the motive power necessary for the plowing of the great land tracts. Traction engines were substituted and they dragged the plows over the vast stretches of land. Thus power plowing had its beginning. From this, too, sprung custom plowing, an occupation now numbering many hundreds of men with an invested capital of several millions. These men do not own the farms upon which they work, but plow them with their especially made outfits for so much per acre.

An up-to-date outfit or rig costs $4,000 and consists of a 20 or 30 horsepower traction engine and a series of plows, usually in groups of 10, 12 or 14, called "bottoms." They are rated as 10, 12 or 14 bottom gang, according to their number, are attached to an angling platform on wheels and arranged in pairs diagonally along the back, with each pair slightly in advance of the other. Levers are attached to all, so that they may be raised or lowered at discretion. When going from one field to another the plows are elevated. With this outfit the engineer or owner goes forth and breaks up the soil at from $3 to $5 per acre, according to the character of the land. If it be new, more is charged; if old, less. The farmer in both cases furnishes the coal.

In appearance the traction engine resembles the ordinary one seen during the threshing season in Illinois, only it is larger, with exaggerated back wheels. They travel at the rate of two miles per hour over even ground and can turn under 25 to 30 acres daily. From five to seven inches is the depth of the furrow.

The cost of running one of these plowing outfits per day is as follows: Man to steer, $1.50; water hauler, $1; board, $3; feed for one horse, 50 cents; sharpening plows, $2.50; oil, $1. About $6 worth of coal is burned.

The good custom plower is bringing up the standards of his craft. Having full knowledge that old world plowing methods are superior to those on this side of the water and realizing that the American farmer often sacrifices quality for quantity, he has set about to reduce plowing to European standards and has for the most part produced satisfactory results. With his steam engine he can secure quantity; with practical knowledge he obtains quality.

There are breakers ahead of him, though, that will give him worry unless he bestir himself at once to avoid the trouble; and that is price cutting. Owing to its extreme youth the occupation has no organization to speak of; no power to maintain a standard wage for plowing, and the result has been a lowering of wages until now in some portions of the west no money is made at all by it. The farmer is glad and willing to pay as high as $5 an acre for breaking his land and why less than this should be asked is a mystery. Threshermen's trade papers, conventions and meetings will change this and if worked out in time the breakers may be avoided.

Custom plowing does not last the year around, though, but that matters little. For by simply unshipping the gang plow from the tractor the latter may be used for threshing, road working, and in the winter time for hauling. In Iowa, for instance, it hauls corn for miles from crib to elevators and from the country to railroad points. In fact there is employment to be found all the time, and where there is nothing else to do lumber may be cut.

Yankees Learn Value of Printers' Ink

By JULES LATOUR of Marshall

There is no nation that has begun to develop the business of advertising as have the Americans. The art of advertising has been carried to a pitch in the United States that puts it in a class by itself. I happen to know that it is a rare thing for any of the big mercantile houses of France or the continent to spend as much as $10,000 a year on the newspapers. They have not learned the value of printer's ink as have the Yankees. Some of my merchant friends will expend on a single issue in telling the public of their wares as much as our leading establishments will pay out in three months. Not only do the storekeepers use the press on a big scale, but their way of telling the reader about their goods is the most plausible, the most delightful, the most winning thing in the line of literary coaxing imaginable and I can well see how such efforts attract customers by the thousands.

During my stay here I have become fascinated with the advertisements seen in your daily newspapers and I read them with unalloyed delight, merely as a study in an art in which you have exceeded the entire world.

Lack of Farmers Becoming Menace

By MRS. S. H. RANDOLPH

At a convention held not long since in Chicago it was urged that the increasing lack of farmers now assumes the proportions of a menace to the United States. Here is one small solution which will work out properly: There are many home-supporting women in the cities and towns of this country who are working their lives out for a mere pittance, widows with families to rear but who are compelled to let their children run the streets without a mother's care, and wives, daughters and sisters who are sole supporters of families. Many of these long for homes on a farm, but have not the means. However, the federal government, or even the rich corporations, who have such lands could advance the use of a few acres to such as are worthy, adding to this in each case a small house, furnishings, food, fuel, seed, agricultural implements and even a small sum of money, if needed, all this fully covered by an honest mortgage. If this were done there would be very few foreclosures and many good farms and farmers added to the credit of this country.

Speech Vulgar and Profane

HERE is no need of going to Webster for the definition of a cigarette. Every body knows that it is a little cigar. It is a bit of tobacco rolled up in a bit of paper, and made to look both attractive and harmless. It is a cigar in its infancy. In time, if the one who indulges in cigarette smoking lives long enough, it will grow into a cigar. But the weed done up in the fine style of a cigarette is not thought to be quite so offensive and vulgar as when employed in the form of a pure Havana or a big black Connecticut, or a clay pipe. It is tobacco all the same, whether rolled together by a leaf from its own stem, or wrapped up in curl papers, or crammed into the bowl of a meerschaum. For obvious reasons it is a cigarette that is most affected by ladies.

However, it is not with cigarette smoking that we are now concerned, but with cigarette swearing. For there is a kind of profanity which bears the same relation to the coarser sort of taking the name of the Lord in vain as that the tempting little cigarette does to the full grown cigar. This, too, is the form of swearing which is most indulged in by the fair sex. It is not often, fortunately, that one hears a round, plump oath from the lips of a woman. When one does, it is undoubtedly shocking, especially if it comes from the lips of a mother of a family of children.

"Polite" Profanity.

But profanity akin to this loud-mouthed and repulsive type, and which suggests a very strong inclination to use the more emphatic words, were it allowable to do so, is not uncommon in the conversation of large numbers of our well-meaning and even cultivated ladies. At every turn of surprise in the talk that is going on, say every little occasion when there seems to be a call for protest, it is "Good Lord!" "Good heavens!" "My gracious!" and so on through the list. Sometimes there is more boldness in the expletive employed, and one whose opinions on actions are not satisfactory is denounced as a "blackguard." Every one who hears the expression knows exactly what the speaker wishes to say, and the affected substitute does not much reduce the situation. Nor does the little which goes round in the circle of listeners do much toward atoning for the suggested blasphemy.

Habit a Vicious One.

Now there is no need here of wandering off into wide ethical discussions, and trying to fix the precise measure of the comparative measure of guilt in God's sight which there may be in this or that or the other form of profanity. It is enough to say that the cigarette habit of swearing is not good. It is a mild type of profanity; and because it is mild is more frequently put in evidence by women than men; but it is not good. It is an offense to a refined taste. It is a debasement of language, and tends all the time to reduce one's vocabulary of choice and appropriate words. It lowers the mental tone of individuals and circles and under the delusive guise of vivacity reduces thought to the cheap quality of a bargain counter. The atmosphere of a home which is filled with these explosives is not a wholesome one for children to breathe. It is bad anywhere and everywhere. It is impossible to believe that a disciple of our Lord can be quite so spiritually minded, can live in quite so close and vital a relationship with him who made that startling deliverance about our responsibility for even the title words that we say, and be quite so much like him in mind and character, if there is no restraint of the kind of speech which savors, even in a mild degree, of our desire. If one cannot express one's opinion, and say one's say, whether man or woman, without swearing, or so much as indicating a desire to swear, it is better to remain silent—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

Answers to Prayer.

The answer to prayer—to most prayers—begins on two sides—God's and our own. We must be willing to work toward it and sacrifice for it, and the sacrifice is sometimes so heavy that we shrink back. If we ask for health, for education, for prosperity, we know that we must work in the direction of our desire. If we ask for spiritual gifts, we will realize that the same is true, but too often when we plead for some special blessing for these we love, for the lifting of a burden from their lives or ours, for some charge that holds good and happiness, we forget that their granting will surely claim from us some price of sacrifice or renunciation. Whatever our prayer, we needs must have a share in its answering—not because of the Father's unwavering love, but because of his love that knows us through and through.

When a man's heart is drying up in the desert of conceit he tries to comfort himself by looking at the size of his head.

Unless a man makes the most of his opportunities he can't expect his opportunities to make the most of him.

RESCUED FROM DEATH ON A RAFT OF ICE

NEW YORK MAN FLOATING OUT TO SEA WHEN FEEBLE CRIES ATTRACT ATTENTION.

New York—Feeble cries for help that seemed to come from far out on the East river were heard early one morning recently by employees of a partially frozen man lying helpless a considerable distance out on shore on a large ice floe on which he had floated for several hours.

For ten minutes the men were unable to see the man, who, they believed, was swimming toward the shore. They called out, but in response again heard only his faint cries for help. At that instant the men saw a number of ice floes across the mouth of the river, and the man's form was discovered.

and Patrick McGann, of 146 West Thirty-fifth street, and several other employees launched a lifeboat from the ferry slip.

The man was found lying on his back. One leg extended over the ice floe and was dragging in the water. His clothes were frozen to the ice. His hair was covered with ice and his body was right from the neck. He lifted himself off the floe after a great deal of difficulty and took him ashore.

Wood Seasoned By Electricity.

In France a method of seasoning wood through the agency of electricity is credited with much success. It is called the Nodon-Brotmann process. The timber is nearly immersed in a tank of water containing ten per cent. of borax, five per cent. of soda, and rests on a lead plate connected with the positive pole of a dynamo. Another similar plate, lying on the exposed surface of the timber, is connected with the negative pole. Thus a current of electricity can be passed through wood, from which all the sap appears to be removed, while the borax and soda take its place in the pores. In a few hours the timber is taken out and dried and the seasoning is said to be complete.

Luxury.

Though luxury is something which only fools go in for, the incidental crumbs thereof are what feed the multitude. It is proof that Providence doesn't wish the multitude to go hungry when fools with a knack for making money keep on being born. If all men were wise, and luxury therefore a thing unknown, we might still be fed, after a fashion, but the sum total of happiness would be lessened, while the bored and vain of the world would be happier except those few who have been permitted, by trial, to discover what a poor thing luxury is, while the rest of us, in being nobody, would be miserable—Puck.

GATHERED SMILES

DRAWING INFERENCES.

President Lincoln once told the following story to D. H. Bates, manager of the war department telegraph office:

"I'm like an old colored man I know. He spent so much of his time preaching to the other slaves it kept him and them from their labors. His master told him he would punish him the next time he was caught preaching."

"But, marse," said the old man, with tears in his eyes, "I always has to do my labors; from Bible texts when dey comes in ma hand, I jes' can't help it. Can you, marse?" "Well," said his master, "I suspect I do sometimes draw inferences. But there is one text I never could understand, and if you can draw the right inference from it I'll let you preach to your heart's content."

"What is de text, marse?" asked the colored man. "The ass snuffeth up the east wind." Now what inference do you draw from that?"

"Well, marse, I'se never heard dat text befo' now; but I 'spects de inference an' she got to snuff a long time befo' she get fat."

His Secret.

"I don't see how you make your butter," Brown said to the modern farmer. "I've been around your farm for a week now, but I haven't seen a sign of a churn."

He laughed pleasantly, partly because of Brown's stupidity and partly because of his success in keeping his method a mystery. "Oh, my scheme is a cinch," he explained. "All I have to do is to take a five-mile trip along the roughest road on my motorcycle with a bucket of cream strapped on behind."

Natural Born Peasimist.

A Denver man says he was standing on the platform of a small town railroad station not very far from this city recently when a youth from the country came up and began gazing at the train report blackboard. On the board was written:

"All trains on time Sept. 1." After studying the board a couple of minutes, the young man turned around, saying: "All trains on time, 'cept one," he said. "I'll bet that there one is the very one I have come here to meet."

WANTED IT ALL HIMSELF.

The hospital he said he was William Wiseman, 42 years old, and that he lived at 216 East Forty-first street. On account of his condition it was hard to get a coherent statement from him.

He said he fell from a dock, but he could not tell whether it was near the foot of the street where he lives or in that immediate vicinity.

He struggled to get to the shore, but the tide carried him out to midstream. His shoes and clothes made it difficult for him to swim. He remembers seeing the lights of what he believes were the Williamsburg and the Brooklyn bridges.

When a Rhinoceros Loses You

By W. COTTON OSWELL

By permission of Longmans, Green & Co., New York. Copyright, by Jess H. Rappaport.

ONE evening I was returning to camp with a number of Kafra, tired and hungry after a long day's sporting elephants, which we never overtook. I saw a long horned rhinoceros standing close to the path. The length of his horn, and the hunger of my men, induced me to get off and fire at him. The shot was rather too high, and he ran off. I was in the saddle in a moment, and, passing the wounded beast, pulled up ten yards on only one side of the line of his retreat, firing the second barrel as he went by from my horse, when, instead of continuing his course, he stopped short and, pausing an instant, began to walk deliberately towards me. This movement was so utterly unlooked for, as the white rhinoceros nearly always makes off, that until he was within five yards, I sat quite still, expecting him to fall, thinking he was in his "fury."

My horse seemed much surprised at the behavior of the old mahabo as I was myself, and did not immediately answer the rein, and the moment's hesitation cost him some time. He was the best horse I ever had or knew, for when I got his head round a thick bush was against his chest and before I could free him the rhinoceros, still at the walk, drove his horn in under his flank and fairly throed both him and his rider into the air. As he turned over I rolled off and fell in some way under the stirrup-iron, which scalped my head for four inches in length and breadth. I scrambled to my knees and saw the horn of the rhinoceros actually within the bend of my leg, but the animal wavered and, with the energy of self-preservation, I sprang to my feet, intending to run, for my gun was unloaded and had fallen. Had I been allowed to do so, this story might have never been told, for, dizzy as I was from the fall, I should have been easily caught.

He passed within a foot without touching me. As I rose for the second time my after-ride came up with another gun. I half pulled him back to my pony and, mounting it, caught and killed the rhinoceros. The horn now hangs over the entrance of my door. That day a common rhinoceros was hunting in the same direction as myself and, hearing the reports of my gun, hoped I might have come up with the elephants I was hunting. He heard the morning. He found me sitting under a bush, hatted, and holding up the piece of my scalp, with the blood streaming down my face. He came towards despatched it to Livingston: "I saw that beggar, Oswell, sitting under a bush holding on his head." A few words told him what had happened, and then my thoughts turned to Sisi, my horse. That very morning, as I left the wagons, I had talked to him affectionately, as was my habit, and told him how he was to take care of my horse, telling him how, when the hunting was over, I would make him fat and happy, and I had played with him and with my gun. He was a very good horse, and I put a ball through his head, took the saddle from his back and started wagonwards, walking half the distance (ten miles) and making my after-ride do likewise. Unless a man was situated as I was then, it is difficult to make him understand all that the loss of a horse means. You cannot even fill up his place in quantity, let alone quality. In this part of Africa, at all events, your success depends enormously upon a good horse, for the country is generally too steep for stalking, and he carries you up to your game, in most instances, as near as you like, and you can rely on it if you don't succeed. Had I been the best shot that ever looked along a rifle, and made of steel, I could have done but a trifle without horses, in comparison with what I accomplished with them. Armed as I was with a smooth-bore, not very true, with heavy charges at over 30 yards, it was a possible I am not vain of my shooting—I can do what I intend pretty well at from ten to twenty-five yards, but would have given the best shot in the world without horses very long odds; besides, from the saddle you see so much more at your ease, and with attention for everything that surrounds you is so much more free.

The horses were unshod and sure-footed. Introduce them, if possible, gradually to their work by letting your after-ride use them a few times. He is always out of danger, and if once accustomed to the sight of an animal at a respectable distance, they can soon be driven up alongside of it, and get as eager in pursuit of elephant and large game as their riders. By neglecting this rule, I very nearly came to grief on an afterwards captivated pony. It was his debut, and a wounded elephant, charging with a scream, so terrific, that he was paralyzed with fear and stood stock still after turning round; spurs had no effect, and how we escaped I cannot now tell. The horse was a fine specimen of his tall and then wheeled. I can only suppose he got the scent of the human being, for he was quite near enough to have swept me from the saddle of the tribe who had gone into the colony for work having learned to ride. One day it was three in the afternoon. We had followed a herd of elephants since 8 a. m., and the traces of the dew of the previous night were still visible on the trail. Our chances of coming up with them were so small that we abandoned the pursuit and turned in the direction of the wagons. After an hour or two the natives began to make pathetic appeals as to the state of their stomachs, suggesting that they had met with hard usage, and that, as we had not found the elephants, they were not above breaking their fast upon quagga, giraffe, or even rhinoceros. I tried to persuade them that elephant was the only dish worthy of them or likely to fill their almost bottomless cavities to which they had alluded; that we might have better luck the next day, and that they might not get off dining till then. If you wish to be successful in hunting for large game it is as well to keep your men on an elephant diet and not pamper them with delicacies, or they become lazy and careless in seeking the larger game. Whether on this particular occasion I was unusually tender-hearted, or their appeals were too touching, I do not remember; but, with all my very poor stock of Beluchana words, I was trying to explain my views, in an open glade of the forest through which we were passing, their hungry eyes fell upon two rhinoceroses of the kottia variety, and the eager cry of "Ugh, kottia, mynah"—the last word a corruption of the Dutch mynster, lengthened plaintively into a kind of prayer—was too much for me, and I dismounted to do their pleasure. Fifty yards before the animals ran a scanty fringe of dwarf thorn bushes, on outskirts of which they were feeding away from us. I made a long detour and came out a hundred yards in front of them, the little scrubby cover lying between us. A handful of arrows thrown into the air gave the direction of the

The day was fast drawing to a close when, though in that added state which prevents a man from deciding whether to-day is yesterday or to-morrow, my brain seemed stirring again in a thick fog. By degrees I became aware that I was on my horse, that a native was leading it, and another carrying my gun beside my stirrup. It all appeared strange, but with the attempt to think it out the mist came eddying thicker, and I was content to let it be. Presently a dim confused impression that I was following some animal was with me, as in a dream; the power of framing and articulating a sentence returned, and I growled asked the nearest Kafra which way the trail led. He pointed in the direction we were going; his manner struck me, but I had had my say, and no other remark was ready. Men met us, among them I recognized two of my Hotentot drivers carrying a "can," or cane frame, which served as a swinging bedstead in my wagon. "Where are you going?" I asked in Dutch. They were silent. "What have you heard you were killed by a rhinoceros?" "No," I answered. Without a thought of what had occurred my right hand fell from the pommel of my saddle to my thigh, with the restlessness of weakness I drew it up again; a red splash of blood upon my cuff caught my eye. I raised my arm to see what was the matter; finding no wound on it, I sought with my hand for it down my leg, through a rent in my trousers and so upwards was all sensation, that I actually dabbed down to the bone in a deep gash, eight inches long, without feeling any pain—the smaller horn had penetrated a foot higher up, but the wound was not so serious as the lower one. The limb still ached, I reached the wagons and, unable to get in and out, I made my bed for nearly four weeks under a bush—the first healing rippled, covered with a rag kept constantly wet. The rhinoceros, as I afterwards wind; warning my way I gained the thorns and, lying flat, waited for a side chance. The rhinoceroses were now within twenty yards of me, but heet on, and at that position they are not to be killed except at very close quarters, for the horns completely guard the brain, which is small and lies very low in the head. Though alone on the present occasion, I was travelling with Maj. Vardon, the best rhinoceros shot I ever knew and his audacity, and our constant success and impunity alone together in carrying on the war against these brutes, had perhaps made me despise them too much. I had so frequently seen their ugly noses, when within eight or ten yards of the gun, turn, tempted by a twig or bit of grass to the right or left, and the wished-for broadside thus given, that I did not think anything was amiss until I saw that the nearer of these two now in front of me, an old cow, should forge her own length once more ahead, her foot would be on me. She was so near that I might possibly have given her a chance of escape, I sprang out, and she was alone, I should probably have tried it; but the rhinoceros, when he charges, nearly always makes straight for the smoke of the gun, even though the hunter is concealed, and I knew that if No. 2, who was within four or five yards of her, would, in all probability, be over me before the smoke cleared. In the hope that my sudden appearance from the ground under her feet would startle her and give me a chance of escape, I sprang out; the old lady was taken aback for a moment and threw up her head with a snort. I dashed alongside of her to get in her rear, my hand was on her as I passed; but the shock to her nerves was not strong enough, for before I had made ten yards she was around and in full chase.

I should have done better to fire into her as I went by, but it had not occurred to me, and it was now too late; in my anxiety to open, to put as much as may be, I had neglected my best chance, and paid the penalty. I was a fast runner, the ground was in my favor, and in 30 yards from the start she was at my heels. A quick turn to the left saved me for the moment, and, perhaps, by giving my pursuer the idea of a back, my life, too. The race was over in the next; as the horned snout came lapping round my thigh I reeled the ground from under my feet, and I fell, fired both barrels; but with the smoke I was sailing through the air and remember nothing more, for I fell upon my head and was stunned.

IN BATTLE WITH A GRIZZLY BEAR

BRUIN, WITH BULLET IN HEART, GIVES SCOTCHMAN TERRIBLE FIGHT.

VICTIM HAS A CLOSE CALL

In Clutch of Brute When Bear Falls Dead—Survives After Being Terribly Wounded and Suffers Long Time.

Victoria, B. C.—Of the many battles that have been waged between man and the grizzly bear, none was ever more exciting or came closer to death for the man than that fought recently by James M. Christie, who has come to Victoria a few days ago for surgical assistance.

Christie and the bear locked in close conflict for but a few seconds. Then the brute dropped dead and Christie was hurled into the bushes, crushed, maimed and blood drenched, while the snow for yards around was trampled with the blood of the combatants.

Christie had tracked the bear several miles to punish him for robbing a cache of moose meat. He had just fired a shot at a wolf from his rifle and found that the sights needed adjustment. Luckily he fixed them once, for within five minutes he heard the crackle of the brushwood and saw the beast that walks like a man. That bear will never attack a man is very well in theory; grizzlies are exceptions. This bear came for Christie on the run and the hunter had barely time to swing his rifle and pull trigger with a snap aim for the heart, the brute being less than thirty yards away. The first shot caught the grizzly through the heart and lung, but failed to stop him; a second hit the animal in the head. Christie shed his snowshoes and tried to dodge into the bushes.

Then came the bear's flinnings. The brush was too thick for the man, but the bear tramped it down like roads and pushed forward, roaring and grunting in characteristic grizzly fashion. As Christie fell in an attempt to dodge, the bear clapped his immense paw on the man's head and began tearing at his face and body. The bear gave a vicious snap and Christie felt his teeth about his neck. In desperation the man threw up his right arm and fate directed that he should thrust it into the open jaws of the bear. Then Christie forced back with all his ebbing strength. His effort was coincident with the coming of death to the bear. His jaws relaxed and Christie half fell, half crawled away.

His two cheeks were torn from the ears to the mouth, he had a double fracture of the jaw, his cheek bones were broken and his jaw fell against his breast. His scalp was cut through his abundant hair. His lower jawbone also was fractured and his right arm broken. Eight or ten cuts on the body counted as minor incidents. The blood poured from Christie's wounds in streams. He swathed himself in a sack and lamely made his way home without his snowshoes, following the ice on the river, as he had no other means of transport. The journey was seven miles and with every foot of the journey marked by his blood, Christie tramped with stolid courage. All the way he had to use one hand to hold up his jaw. He hoped on arrival at the cabin to find his partner, George Crisfield, at home, but Crisfield was not out on a line of traps and did not return for hours, and the desperately wounded man had to build a fire and attend to his own injuries as best he could. On Crisfield's return every crude means was taken to make Christie comfortable, but there was neither medicine nor antiseptics.

The Brush Was Too Thick for the Man.

After giving the victim such rest as could be afforded Crisfield packed him in a rough toboggan and hired two Indians to haul the patient to J. B. Perill's trading post. Christie and Crisfield arrived at the time there were 50 miles from Dawson. They took a tent and camped at night. It was a racking trip for the injured man.

KNIFING RATTLESNAKES IS DANGEROUS PASTIME

DICK HAYNES HAS A CLOSE CALL, SO WILL USE A "44" HEREAFTER.

Denver, Col.—"Dick Haynes was a young daredevil who would go out of his way to play with a rattler," said an old plainsman. "I have seen him kill at least a dozen with a knife, and I saw him when he got such a close call that he dropped the game and used a gun forever after. We were out together one Sunday. It was warm, and as we rode he fanned his face with his sombrero. Suddenly he clapped his hat on his head and started his horse on a lope. 'Watch me get that snake,' he shouted.

The Rattler Was Beside Itself With Rage.

"Fifty yards to our right was a rattler. It was trying to get away, but we headed it in an instant and were off our horses. It immediately coiled and then I saw the biggest snake I ever seen. It was a diamond rattler, about 20 years old. It had the ugliest head I ever saw, enormous in size and with a mouth that reminded me of a bulldog's jaw. Dick stopped just long enough to size up its length so as to get an idea of its spring, and then went in on it.

"The strike came like a flash of lightning. The snake struck the ground with a sound like the cracking of a four-horse whip in the hand of an expert. Dick just saved himself by throwing his body full length backward. The snake coiled again before he could get to it. I got nervous and called to him to stop it.

"That's the first one ever struck me and got back," said he, "and I'm going to have that beauty head." The rattler's head was beside itself with rage. It lay, coil upon coil of smooth, glistening length, showing the long reach and powerful spring in reserve. Out of the coils of its body a head and body rose straight in the air, and above all that flat, black, venomous head, with glowing eyes and forked tongue, waving slightly, warily, to and fro.

"Dick stepped in again, more cautiously. He advanced the knife nearer and yet nearer to that swaying head. I knew he was getting too close, but I did not dare speak to him for fear of rattling him at the crucial instant. Dick's knife flashed, and the creature lay squirming, a headless thing, upon the ground.

"But Dick was pale. 'It got me in the thumb,' said he; 'let's get to camp.' 'We jumped for the saddles and started on a mad run. Dick rode with his thumb pressed hard against the saddle horn, and his knife in the other hand. 'If she begins to swell, off she comes,' said he. 'We reached the ranch, and while Dick poured down whiskey we examined the thumb. Neither then or at any later time did it show the slightest marks. The snake had struck the handle of his knife and the strength and suddenness of the impact made it stick his nerve. It was a good thing for him. He never went after a rattler again without a long '44.'"

To Study European Conditions. Miss Juliet Points, who has just won the $15000 prize offered by the General Federation of Women's clubs and providing for two years study in England, will sail in June for Europe. She spent the summer on the Continent, going to England in time to enter one of the universities.

Improve T-Square. Two Tennessee draftsmen have patented a new T-square, which is held against the iron round edge of a drawing board by an electro magnet in its head. A switch cuts off the current and allows it to be moved.
